

CHURCH INTERFERENCE DENOUNCED.

The Democratic convention which reassembled at Salt Lake City to consider the action of the First Presidency of the Mormon Church in condemning church officials for accepting nominations for State and other offices without first obtaining the permission of the church, issued an address to the people of the Territory which closes as follows:

"We declare the truth to be that man may worship his Maker as his conscience dictates; that no State nor political body has the right to interfere with this great privilege; that man's first allegiance, politically, is to his country; that no church, ecclesiastical body or spiritual adviser should encroach upon the political rights of the individual; that in a free country no man nor body of men can, with safety to the State, use the name or the power of any religious sect or society to influence or control the elective franchise; that a trust is imposed upon each citizen in a free country to act politically, upon his own judgment and absolutely free from control or dictation, ecclesiastically or otherwise; that no political party can be required to obtain the consent of any church or the leader thereof before selecting its candidates for office; that no citizen by reason of his association with any State can be absolved from his duty to the State, either in time of war or in peace, without the consent of the church; that all men should be, and are of right, free to think, free to act, free to speak and free to vote without fear, molestation, intimidation or undue influence.

"Thus believing, whenever designing men have seized upon the cloak of religion to hide from view their nefarious designs, and while appealing to man's spiritual faith, have sought to direct his political action for selfish ends, the Democratic party since its organization has denounced such a course. It has declared in the past, and it declares now, for every man's political freedom, whatever may be the governmental views of those who guide his spiritual welfare.

"We therefore, in the most solemn manner, say that we will not be dictated to, interfered with or hindered in our political duties by those selected to minister the consolation of the Gospel. The people being sovereign in this free land, to the people we make our appeal. The church, being the source of men's religion, to the church we appeal when we so desire with regard to matters affecting the conscience."

THE PRESIDENT AND SECRETARY OLNEY.

There is a rumor afloat in Washington that Secretary of State Olney and President Cleveland do not agree on the foreign policy to be pursued by the government. It is alleged that when Secretary Olney was transferred to the State Department, he only consented upon the condition that he would be permitted to institute a vigorous foreign policy. That Mr. Olney instituted such a policy regarding the Cuban revolution and the Venezuela boundary dispute is known to be a fact, and until recently had the support of the President. Now, however, President Cleveland, Secretary Olney and other members of the Cabinet disagree as to the course the government should pursue in dealing with these foreign complications, and the rumor has it that Secretary Olney will resign unless the President carries out the policy that he has mapped out.

These rumors have not been authenticated, but it is believed that the relations between the President and Secretary Olney are considerably strained. Secretary Olney seems to believe in the Monroe doctrine, and the President evidently does not. Olney would, within a reasonable time, recognize the Cubans as belligerents; the President seems to have no disposition to do so. Olney would prevent the British from acquiring more territory in Venezuela, and compel Great Britain to submit the dispute between it and that Republic to arbitration. The President, so far as known, cares nothing for the Monroe doctrine, and interposes no objections to the landing of British troops in Nicaragua, Venezuela or anywhere else on the American continent.

RAILROAD MEN UNEASY.

There is said to be much uneasiness among railroad employees at Sacramento. There are rumors of a prospective cut in wages and also in the number of employees. The railroad officials claim that the reduction of 25 per cent in transportation rates made by the California Railroad Commission necessitates a reduction in expenses. The officials say the reduction in freight rates was a horizontal one. This is denied by the San Francisco newspapers, which say the reduction does not apply to the system as an entirety, but to certain localities only.

A meeting was held in Sacramento to protest against the reduction in freight rates. Several of the employees do not endorse the resolutions adopted at the meeting and there is considerable discussion as to the consequences should

Mr. Huntington attempt to make a reduction of 25 per cent in wages. The hope of the employees that no reduction in wages will be made is said to be based on the claim that the American Railway union is numerically and financially stronger than ever before. Members of that order openly declare that should occasion demand it there would be a strike that would result in the annihilation of the system under the present management, and a demand from the entire population of the coast that further cause of a strike be obviated by the Government assuming the management of the Central Pacific and Western Pacific roads.

THE TRIAL OF DURRANT.

THE DURRANT TRIAL.

The Effect of Gas—Opening Argument of the Prosecution.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 24.—Drs. Rosestern and May, who were examined in the Durrant case, testified that the first effect of gas was to flush the face and lips and inflame the eyes. Durrant, according to his own statement, had neither of these symptoms. The physicians also testified that a man who for five minutes had been subjected to the fumes of escaping gas from twenty-four jets would be insensible.

Miss Cunningham was asked a few unimportant questions and then excused, after which the prosecution announced that it rested the case. Assistant District Attorney Peixotto then began the opening argument for the prosecution. After dwelling at length upon the importance of the case on account of the brutality of the murder, he said he was prepared to answer the four questions asked by the defense at the opening of the case, viz: Where was Blanche Lamont murdered, when was she murdered, by whom was she murdered and what was the motive? He said that the prosecution believed that it had proved that Miss Lamont was murdered in Emmanuel Church on the afternoon of April 3d by Theodore Durrant. The motive he ascribed to the same unbridled passion that prompted Jack the Ripper to murder women in the Whitechapel district of London. He said that the State never had and never would demand the life of an innocent man, but that he believed the evidence justified the prosecution in asking a verdict of guilty, with the penalty fixed at death. So far as Durrant's previous good reputation was concerned, he said that it carried out the theory of the prosecution, as Miss Lamont would not have gone to a lonely place with anybody in whom she did not have the utmost confidence.

Mr. Peixotto then reviewed the testimony from the time Miss Lamont left the Normal School on Powell street in company with Durrant, until she entered the church with him. After dwelling on the manner in which Durrant enticed the unsuspecting girl to the belfry and murdered her, he began the analysis of Durrant's actions.

"Stripping her body of its clothing and even taking from her fingers rings which she wore," he said, "this defendant laid out the form of this poor girl, so that in after years when her skeleton should be found in the belfry, there would be nothing to tell that the bleached bones were those of Miss Lamont. In doing this he did not go about it as a person unskilled in the handling of bodies would have done, for he blocked the head up with pieces of wood so that the air might circulate freely under the body and reduce the liability of discovery.

"Then it might be supposed that he would have quietly slipped out of the church and gone away from the church that must have had so much horror for him, but not so with this cool, calculating young man, who showed on the stand that he was more cunning even than his own lawyers and smarter than the District Attorney who was questioning him. Egyptian darkness was none too dark for him, and he chose to remain in the church. To go out he might have met Janitor Sademan or somebody else he knew, and seeing his pale face, disheveled hair and trembling form, they would have asked, 'what makes you so pale?'

"So he went down stairs, probably not having heard King playing on the organ, as his crime was all his mind could contain. Coming through the sliding door, as King said, he stopped a moment. King asked him why he was so pale. Right here Durrant's tongue slipped. As he was telling of this incident, when on the stand, Durrant did not realize his pallor and he was unprepared for the question. Before he thought of the full meaning he unconsciously spoke of the crime he had committed.

"You would be pale if you had been through what I have," he replied. Those fateful words could not even be wrong from the smiling witness King. They were spoken by Durrant when on the stand in one of those lapses of memory that always comes to guilty consciences. When he uttered the words to King he knew at once that he had spoken of his secret and at once contrived an explanation. Then he told the story of having been overcome by gas, the truth of which has been so positively refuted by other witnesses.

"They were words of a guilty man and told of a horrible crime that he hoped to conceal."

Durrant was as unconcerned as ever this morning, but his father and mother showed more anxiety than they ever have before over the outcome of the trial.

THE ARREST OF A. A. SMITH.

Constable Branton Finds Him in Long Valley After a Three Days' Search.

Constable Branton returned last evening, having arrested A. A. Smith, the man charged with an attempt of poisoning Ed Laird, Amosico Eschov-eria and the three Indians near Deep Hole, at an early date this month. Mr. Branton went out to the Fox moun-tains where Smith was supposed to be, and not finding him there he traced him to the Albert Ross ranch in Long Valley. The officer rode over eighty miles yesterday. He told Smith of the charge and that he had a warrant for him and made the arrest. Smith made no objection to accompanying the officer and was willing to come to Reno without a requisition.

Smith says he has no fear of being convicted as he believes he can prove his innocence of the charge. He says that a gang out in that country have been trying to run him off for some time and this charge has been trumped up as a part of the conspiracy against him. He claims that he had no intention of skipping out and on the contrary had he known that he was wanted would have come in without the service of a warrant. He will probably have his preliminary examination immediately, or as soon as the witnesses can be brought in. If he is able to show that his accusers have charged him with this crime through any malice it may be a very serious matter with them.

WEDDING BELLS.

Two of Reno's Young People Decide to Go Through Life Hand in Hand.

H. C. Clausen, one of the popular proprietors of the Washoe lunch counter, and Miss Mary Johnson of Reno were joined in holy wedlock last evening. The ceremony took place at the residence of H. Block, Rev. S. Unsworth officiating.

Harry, as Mr. Clausen is familiarly known, is one of Reno's best young men. He is popular with all of his associates, and his close attention to business and promptness in all transactions, courteous and affable manners has made him many friends in Reno. His heart was full of happiness last night and he looked forward to the new partnership he had entered into as the best move of his life.

Mrs. Clausen has only been a resident of Reno a short time, but her kindly manner and sweet disposition have endeared her to all who have become acquainted with her. While her husband has won a jewel of a wife of which he can well be proud and prize beyond all price, Mrs. Clausen is to be congratulated for capturing a heart that is as true as the stars are to the night or the rising of the sun on a Summer's morn. The JOURNAL extends congratulations and hopes that their wedded life may continue as happy and bright as their wedding day.

Mr. and Mrs. Clausen left for California last evening for a two weeks' sojourn in San Francisco and vicinity.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

IN MEMORIAM.

Lives on the death of Glenn and Clinton Frazer, aged 18 months and 16 years, respectively, who perished by drowning. The first named in May, at home, and the other in Pyramid Lake, in July last.

Ever yet his early morn had fled, And sunny life had scarce begun, The summons came, and quickly sped The news of a departing one.

Yet soon, again, came sorrow, keen, Fall in his cumber, each at sight, One larger gem, yet, in the green, Sink low, in icy depth expired.

And thus, two solons of a band, Each loved and precious, very dear, Are plucked, as if by evil hand, And both in Spring and Summer year.

The blow that clips in blooming time The blossom, seems, indeed, severe; For, then, all 'round is gay, and chime The birds from limbs both far and near.

And pang is added to that grief, Already deep, intensely real, When in its stronger growth the leaf Is withered, that no sun can heal.

'Tis not thy call, O Death! so much We mourn, for all must die, we mind, But, Oh! 'tis hard to part with such— The tender young, the faithful, kind.

In that great Temple in the sky, In mother-earth beneath the sod, In ocean, sea, yet ever nigh, There, reigns and dwells our Father, God.

And He whose care is over all, Who lulls our fears, who comforts, charms; Who even notes the sparrow's fall, Embracing, takes them to His arms.

Yast is that wisdom which fore-sees The future in the least of things; As pleasant as the floating breeze, It is, with large intent, to bless.

That Power, Supreme, controlling, felt, Yet, far beyond all human sight, Which time can never rust or melt, Will guide to realms, eternal, bright.

Green over the blades that wave And fragrant, lovely, flowers that bloom O'er them who found an early grave; O'er them dispersing murky gloom. M.

Bert Lyon came up here this week from Disaster Peak, Nevada, where he and other parties have been prospecting all Summer, says the DeLamar Nugget. He is confident that they have discovered what will eventually prove a rich and extensive mining district and they propose to hang on there. The district is so remote from any other mines that it is difficult to get capitalists in there. For this reason the prospectors propose to give the first man with money who will go in there and open up some of their claims almost any layout he may demand.

WHAT FREE COINAGE MEANS.

An Eastern Paper That Thoroughly Understands It.

Free coinage of silver means profit in farming. Profit in farming means increase in values. Increase in values means new homes, prosperous villages and thriving cities. Increase of farm products means increase of national wealth, a boom for manufacturers' money to redeem railroads from the English pawnbrokers and fair dividends for stockholders. It means work for idle men and a reduction in the number of tramps. It means less crime, less poverty and less taxation. It means a restoration of agriculture and the foundation of commerce and manufactures.—Caseville (Mich.) Critic.

An Operation Performed.

Dr. T. W. Huntington of Sacramento arrived on yesterday morning's train, being called in consultation with Drs. Phillips in the case of Mrs. E. S. Lierre. It was decided that an operation was necessary and with other local physicians in attendance, Dr. Huntington performed the operation. Mrs. Lierre passed through the ordeal safely and up to a late hour last night she was as comfortable as could be expected under the circumstances. Owing to the seriousness of the lady's condition it cannot be told as yet whether she will rally or not, but it is hoped that the worst is over and that she will soon be on the road to recovery.

Justice Court.

Judge Linn was not rushed yesterday, but nevertheless transacted considerable business. Bert Johnson, Frank Howard and John Jones, the three tramps who had already pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy, were sentenced to fifteen days each in the county jail. John Morgan, Thos. Williams and James Donnelly appeared for trial. Donnelly withdrew his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty. The other two stood trial. Officers Nash and McInnis were examined and the defendants given an opportunity to make a statement. All were remanded to jail and the trio will be sentenced to-day.

The Scotch residents of Reno will give a Scotch entertainment and ball in Armory Hall on the 31st of October, which will in our opinion be one of the most amusing and instructive of Scotch styles and customs that can be imagined, one of the most important of these will be the playing on the bagpipes by Donald Weir, one of the players who led the 94th Highlanders British Regiment to victory. td.
